

Amine Idriss Adoum

for African Union Commissioner for Economic Development, Tourism, Trade, Industry, and Mining

“Guided by the principle of Africa Above All, my vision is rooted in Agenda 2063 to achieve the Africa We Want

My mission : Africa's Economic Transformation

I am Amine Idriss Adoum, a Pan-African leader, economist, and development strategist who has dedicated my career to Africa's economic transformation. As a father of three daughters, I wake up every day with one question in mind: What kind of Africa will I leave for them and for the millions of young Africans who dream of a better future?

This is not just about policies and strategies—it is about people. It is about the farmers, traders, small business owners, and young innovators who hold the key to our continent's success. It is about ensuring that Africa no longer depends on others to define its path, but instead becomes a force that drives its own economic destiny. For me, this mission is more than professional—it is personal.

For 25 years—18 of them in senior leadership roles—I have worked at the highest levels of both the public and private sectors. My expertise spans industrialization, trade, infrastructure, regional integration, and development financing. I have led transformative initiatives that have reshaped Africa's economic landscape, always with the belief that Africa Above All is the principle that must guide our development.

My manifesto

As Commissioner for Economic Development, Trade, Tourism, Mining, and Industry, I am committed to driving the structural transformation of Africa's economy. My mandate will focus on industrialization, strengthening intra-African trade, economic sovereignty, and regional integration. We must build an Africa that produces, transforms its resources, and establishes itself as a global powerhouse.

Mes priorités

Moonshot 1 :

All AU Member States Achieve at Least Middle-Income Status

Moonshot 2 :

A More Integrated and Connected Africa

Moonshot 3 :

More Empowered and Productive African Citizens

Moonshot 4 :

A Strong and Influential Africa on the Global Stage

The Right Leader for Africa's Economic Future

I am not just a candidate. I am a leader who delivers real impact. My leadership experience, strategic vision, and deep knowledge of Africa's economic landscape make me the right person to drive the African Union's economic development agenda forward.

Through industrialization, trade, infrastructure, and innovation, I will ensure that Africa produces, trades, and competes on its own terms. I will work to build an Africa where prosperity is not a privilege, but a reality for all.

The time to act is now. The Africa We Want is within our reach.

